Thanks Steven.

It's possible. I know Jenny and we can toss this into the mix of data sources. The state's EDD may be a better source of information.

But the first starting point is to get from our side exactly what information would we like to see presented. And then we can pull from a variety of sources.

Happy Thursday!!

Jenny Scanlin spoke at the BID Consortium meeting recently in Century City. I couldn't tell you what she spoke about--not impressive and some went over my head; however, I was thinking they may have some data that could be useful to us?
